The Presbyterian Washington Office is the public policy information and advocacy office of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The office advocates, and helps the church at large to live out the social witness perspectives and policies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Dr. Nelson recognizes that many Presbyterians, especially young people, have a keen interest in living out the values of their faith in ways that impact the public arena. Yet, they do not make the connection with the Presbyterian Church and its historic role in shaping public policy. His hope is to help individuals, networks and congregations work together as they seek to bear witness to Christ's love and justice in ways that transform the world.
